Dear Portfolio Show Visitor,

The fast-paced, collaborative environment of film production and the creativity and problem-solving required across the production process combine to make filmmaking the perfect profession for me. My love for the outdoors and rock climbing in particular have led me to opportunities on athletic and outdoor productions where I have acquired many skills advantageous in shooting in the magnificent outdoors. While my skillset includes story ideation, camerawork, and editing, I aspire to apply my organizational and business skills as a producer.

My time interning at Bedrock Filmworks has gotten me even more excited about joining the industry. I helped Lost Temple of the Inca, a multi-year documentary distributed by National Geographic, through the entire postproduction process and all the way to film festival distribution. The numerous collaborative and problem-solving tasks we navigated left me with a solid grasp of the demands of media projects and the creativity and willpower required to see them through to the end.

I am finishing my degree in film at Portland State University equipped with a wide array of skills including a great work ethic and attitude, and am prepared to help you achieve your filmmaking goals. I would love to set up an in-person meeting to discuss how I might produce and problem-solve with your company, indoors or out.

Thank you so much for your time! I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Best,

Riley Brown
